Senator Kuchel, Fo Views CIA, Capital

By MELINDA TONKS

Back in the ranks of USC's class of 1932, one might notice the name of California's senior representative to the United States Senate, Thomas Kuchel.

Kuchel, who has represented California in the Senate for 14 years, expressed his views recently on such current problems as the CIA, capital punishment, the draft and his chances in 1968.

On CIA allotment: Kuchel admitted that the Senate Appropriations Committee, of which he is a member, does provide money to the CIA, but that he didn't know how much.

"In an open society, you can learn about the American government by reading the Congressional Record and other periodicals. It is necessary to have the CIA to prevent the enemy from knowing the secrets of our society.

"It's impossible to know the amount of money appropriated. For a long time, spying has been a dirty word, but our system of gathering information is not as extensive as that of other countries."

On capital punishment: "The death penalty does constitute a deterrent to the commission of a crime. If a person is guilty of treason, he should be removed from society. I therefore would vote against the repeal of capital punishment."

On the voting age: "I feel that the 18-year-olds should have the right to vote. They are smarter than the previous generation. Also, men are being drafted at the age of 18."

This led to his support of President Johnson's recent draft proposal.

"Service by young Americans is becoming a more important problem," Kuchel said. "The President intended the lottery system to eliminate the charges of favoritism. The present system has not been operative in the way the people want the Selective Service to operate.

"No, I do not quarrel with the attempt to have a lottery," Kuchel said.

On the current controversy over the possession of fire arms: "I am distressed at the amount of killing by firearms. I favor legislation where certain kinds of people, such as felons, minors and the mentally deficient, are prohibited from possession of fire arms, especially through interstate transportation."

Kuchel was emotional about his 1968 chances, his representation of California.
